4. Other Crises (India/Pakistan)

During the period just prior to the India/Pakistan war and when it became certain that hostilities would break out, the Near East Division, DDP embarked on a program to reduce or evacuate classified holdings from the Stations and Bases affected. Using the files and information available in the Overseas Security Support Division, the Near East Division made decisions not only relating to classified materials, but also to personnel. A number of judgments and evaluations of the [] physical defenses were based on this available information and appropriate action was instituted to either evacuate personnel from the area or permit them to remain.

5. Equipment

Among one of the higher priorities of this Division was the development of an improved intrusion alarm system which is now ready for installing in designated areas overseas. The concept was to make use of certain commercially available components and then develop that which was not available but considered vital in the control of the system. A control unit was designed by a representative of this Division with its location for installation within the protected area. In addition

10 sates. In one incident, following receipt of an extremely urgent request for assistance, a security equipment specialist was at the overseas installation in less than 22 hours from the time the message was received. The latter entailed a "crash" handling of all administrative details and required the man to travel all night.
